Shane Jackman began his music career playing for the East Coast coffeehouse crowds. His album Rhythm of the Land debuted in the Americana Top 40 and rose to number 23 on the Gavin Radio Chart. He has played up to 165 concerts a year at colleges, festivals, and grassroots music halls throughout the United States and Canada. He was the NACA (National Association of Campus Activities) National Convention 1998 Mainstage Showcase Artist. Shane has had the opportunity to share the stage with artists such as Michael Martin Murphy, Trisha Yearwood, Shawn Colvin, Marty Stewart, the Mavericks, Pete Segar, Howard Jones, and Peter, Paul and Mary.

With Opening Act Wood Carver

Emerging from the identity-deprived era that is the 2000s is Wood Carver, a songsmith armed with nothing more than a guitar, a voice, and the truth, or how he sees it, anyway. Laced with his trademark dry wit and penchant for off-the-wall yet often poignant worldview, Carver writes tunes that manage to entertain as well as provoke thought, musing on such universal topics as death, aging, politics, and even fear of being relegated to life in a mundane profession. But quell all fears about yet another bleeding heart artist joining the ranks; Carver makes it all palatable with a good-natured stage presence that manages to win even the most hard-bitten crowd over.
